

ANNUAL TRACK AND FIELD SPORTS

Episcopal High School Announces Interscholastic Games on Their Grounds.

THIRTY SCHOOLS TO COMPETE

Open to Virginia, Maryland and the District of Columbia.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

EPISCOPAL HIGH SCHOOL, ALEXANDRIA, VA., January 20.—Those interested in athletics in the secondary schools of this section will welcome the announcement just made by the manager of the track team of the Episcopal High School, near Alexandria, Va., that the second annual interscholastic track and field meet of the Episcopal High School will be held on Saturday, May 6th, at the athletic grounds of the school. This meet is open to schools of Virginia, Maryland and the District of Columbia, and it is hoped that as many as thirty schools will compete.

Any schools which may be thinking of competing at this meet will find plenty of training and encouragement at the present time. For the winter or early spring are scheduled the indoor games of the high schools of Washington, as well as the indoor games under the auspices of Georgetown University and the Fifth Regiment games in Baltimore, all open to competitors from this section. In former years these indoor games, though, of course, not equal to outdoor track athletics, have been a pronounced success, serving as they do to keep alive the athletic spirit among college men and school boys at a time when the weather prevents much outside exercise.

This year for the first time, Virginia schools and colleges are to have the same advantages. The Richmond Interscholastic Club has sent out announcements for its first annual track meet to be held at the House Show building, Richmond, on the evening of Saturday, February 19th, open to all schools and colleges. There will be two events—a 200-yard dash and 600-yard run—open to preparatory schools alone, and eight running and jumping events for all comers, not counting relay races for schools and colleges. The games will be held under Amateur Athletic Union rules and cups will be awarded to first, second and third best in each event and a silk banner to the winning team.

The club is fortunate in having as manager Dr. J. A. Reilly, one of the best known track athletes in America, formerly captain of the track and football teams of Georgetown University, and later coach and instructor at the University of Virginia. Three years ago he was at the head of the club, and has kept them up ever since. Athletic Day, the first Saturday in November, is one of the gala days of the year and forms an excellent preparation for the interscholastic meet in the spring.

Within late years other schools have adopted the same custom and the University of Virginia three years ago offered encouragement to the growing sentiment by holding an interscholastic meet at Charlottesville.

Too much cannot be said in favor of track athletics, which are in many ways more valuable for the physical development of the boy than the more prominent sports of base-ball and football. The development of speed in the dashes and endurance in the long runs is most salutary, and it is certainly true that track athletics are free from the alleged brutality now charged against football, while the qualities of determination and attention to detail cultivated by it are ones that make a man useful in the world's work.

In connection with track athletics it would be well to speak of the allied form of exercise now coming into vogue in Virginia and the District—cross country running. It has been for a long time the custom in the larger Southern colleges and schools to have cross-country teams to take long cross-country runs, and it is no uncommon sight to see a dozen or more men in running costume starting out for a whole afternoon's run over hill and dale. From England has been borrowed one of the favorite games of the public schools, hare and hounds. As is well known, the game consists in the pursuit of one party of players by another who follow the paper trail left by their opponents and endeavor to overtake them. The effect of all these games is to bring into the open air many who are not interested in base-ball and football and still more to furnish a delightful means of exercise for the seasons when those games are not played.

The Episcopal High School was the first of Virginia schools to inaugurate the custom of having annual athletic games open to contestants from surrounding schools. The first annual meet, held last May, more than justified the name of the sanguine hopes of the organizers of the project. The entries numbered twenty-eight schools, of whom eighteen were on the ground and competed in spite of the threatening aspect of the weather. The total enrollment of competitors was nearly one hundred and fifty. The meet aroused great interest in Washington and in the neighboring section, and in spite of threatening rain was viewed by a large crowd of enthusiastic spectators, including many alumni of the schools who came from distant points. In speaking of these games some sanguine hopes of the organizers of the project, the winner of the meet, especially of its representatives, Kent, Connor and Cooke.

Familiar.

A large touring automobile containing a man and his wife in a narrow road may wagon fully loaded. The woman declared that the farmer must back out, but her husband contended that she was unreasonable. "But you can't back the automobile so far," she said, "and I don't intend to move for anybody. He should have seen us." The husband pointed out that this was impossible, owing to an abrupt turn in the road. "I don't care," she insisted. "I won't budge if we have to stay here all night."

The man in the automobile was starting to argue the matter when the farmer interrupted. "Never mind, sir," he exclaimed. "I'll try to back out. I've got one just like her at home."—Philadelphia Ledger.
